TAFE Illawarra hosts successful Bricklaying program for High School teachers

TAFE Illawarra’s Queanbeyan Campus recently held a Bricklaying program specifically designed for High School Teachers from the Archdiocese of Canberra and Goulburn and the NSW Department of Education and Communities.

According to Deb White, Education and Training Consultant, this professional training in the construction industry resulted in the delivery of two units from the Certificate II in Construction.

“We are very excited about this program as it will provide a great introduction into the construction industry and will result in practical and theory based training and support for the Teaching staff to deliver board endorsed courses to future students,” she said.

The training delivered by TAFE Illawarra teaching staff saw the High School Teachers enjoy four days of theory and practical training in Brick and Blocklaying.

“This training was a great example of Catholic and Government schools working together with a common goal of providing vocational educational delivery of board endorsed courses in bricklaying to their students in their respective schools,” she said.

TAFE Illawarra’s Queanbeyan Campus will be delivering all stages of the bricklaying trade qualification this year. In addition, pre-apprenticeship courses in bricklaying are also being offered at the Campus.
